

A security conglomerate was concerned about the impact of COVID-19 on their global operations.

They sought our expert assessment of the healthcare infrastructure and country preparedness of each location.

After reviewing the assessment and overall impact to their business: we helped the organisation to put in place new measures to tackle areas of concerns:

- COVID-19 case management procedures
- Mental health education programme

International SOS provided a virtual, comprehensive wellbeing programme solution for a large oil and gas conglomerate during the COVID-19 pandemic. This was developed by our medical director.

The programme resulted in a 92% satisfaction rate with the efforts during the activities, while 68% of participants perceived an improvement in health post challenge.

CONSULTING THAILAND

International SOS provided best practice in responding to and managing COVID-19 health threats to a chemical producer multinational. We provided key information to the organisation's crisis management team.

Our client was equipped with a robust risk management plan that addressed attendee safety needs from pre-trip to post-trip.
